Millions for county dams

> by CHAD INGRAM Times Staff

Multiple dams in Haliburton County that are part of the feeder system for the Trent Severn Waterway will be repaired or replaced through millions of dollars in federal funding.

Peterborough MP Maryam Monsef and Minister of Environment and Minister for Parks Canada Catherine McKenna announced at the Peterborough lift lock June 26 that the government will put another $270 million into TSW infrastructure improvements.

That comes in addition to $300 million the Conservative government announced in 2015. Nearly $40 million of the new funding will be used on projects in Haliburton County.

In Minden Hills, the Horseshoe Lake dam will be replaced at a cost of $4.2 million. While $700,000 was announced for repairs to the structure last year, and additional $3.5 million is now included for a total replacement of the dam.

"Initially this project was announced as a major rehabilitation, however, upon more in depth inspection it was determined that a full replacement is required," reads a release from Parks Canada. "In addition to building a new dam, the wing walls will be raised to reduce flooding risk. The new dam will include an upgraded log lifter and added pedestrian crossing to enhance visitor experience at the site."

The Canning Lake dam will be rehabilitated or replaced for $3 million, the Twelve Mile Lake dam for $3.3 million and the Elliot Falls dam for $8 million.

Residents who saved woman from fire honoured

Haliburton County residents Barry Miscio and Joe Voicey were honoured by the OPP at a ceremony in Barrie on June 17 for saving a woman's life in the winter of 2014.

In December of 2014, Miscio and Voicey were driving down the Barry Line when they saw a house on fire. A woman trapped inside the burning structure, unable to find the doorway from her bedroom due to smoke, was yelling for help. Miscio and Voicey crawled through the home, which was engulfed in flames, locating the woman and escorting her outside.

Dysart et al fire chief Miles Maughan indicated that given the seriousness of the fire and the time constraints for the fire department's arrival, the men should be honoured as heroes as they had very much saved the woman's life.

Horseshoe Lake dam to be replaced

In Algonquin Highlands, the dam at Kushog Lake will be renovated through $900,000 worth of work.

"The Kushog Lake dam will undergo a rehabilitation," the release reads. "The project will include concrete repairs along the dam and the culvert passing beneath the roadway bridge. Further investigation is required to determine the full extent of work that is required. In addition, enhancements to public safety will be undertaken through the installation of such measures as improved guard rails, increased signage, safety booms and metal gain covers."

In Dysart et al, Long Lake dam is slotted for $3.3 million worth of work to be rehabilitated or rebuilt and the Red Pine dam will receive $4.5 million.

"The current Red Pine dam is constructed using timber cribbing in a style of construction that was common up until the late 1800s," the release reads. "This project will undertake a major rehabilitation or replacement of the Red Pine dam. Further investigation will be conducted to determine the full extent of work that is required and the type of dam that would be constructed should a replacement be required."

In Highlands East, $3.3 million will be invested in the Esson Lake dam, which will be rehabilitated or replaced.

The Horseshoe Lake dam. seen here during this year's spring freshet, is now slated to be replaced completely in a $4.2-million project funded by the federal government.

The lanterns are generally made from paper, supported by a wire frame that incorporates a holder at its base for a solid fuel heat source. In the event that the lantern is caught in a tree, or lands on a roof, the outcome could be tragic.

A Chinese lantern, is in essence, a naked flame floating into the sky with no control over the direction it will take or where it will land. Additionally, there is no guarantee that the internal fuel source will be fully extinguished and cooled, once the lantern descends.

These can present a very real fire hazard.

Three letter word

CHAD INGRAM

Reporter

S MANY READERS are likely already aware, ▲a Haliburton Village business was vandalized in a despicable display of homophobia last week.

On the evening of June 21, the business owner returned to his shop after dinner to find the word "fag" scrawled across a window in black spraypaint.

Instead of quietly accepting the hateful act, the business owner took to social media, writing about the incident on Facebook and how he refused to believe it was anything more than the act of one ignorant person with too much time to kill.

That post went viral, or at least Haliburton County viral, and within a day had been shared nearly 200 times and met with hundreds of messages of love and support.

That response was indicative of the true character of Haliburton

Let's be clear, this was not just an act of vandalism. It was a hate crime. Its perpetrator, let's be honest with ourselves, is almost certainly male because, frankly, women are just better than that.

So, for the remainder of this column, the perpetrator will be referred to as "he" and "the criminal."

The big question here is, of course, why? Why would he, the criminal, do something like this?

The answer, of course, is a mixture of ignorance and stupidity, key ingredients in the recipe for hatred. Like so many behaviours, the criminal's homophobia is probably learned, picked up from and reinforced by his parents and/ or peer group.

To take it to the level of defacing property, though, is something else. If Freud were here, he'd likely tell us the criminal was lashing out because of inner turmoil with his own latent homosexuality.

That could be it, or the criminal could just be a bigoted, mouthbreathing moron. Judging by his penmanship, it's incredible his > brain was actually able to muster the correct spelling of a three-letter word.

Difficult to say. Either way, the point is this: homophobia is stupid. It's the same as racism. It's the same thing. It's discriminating against people based on a biological characteristic. It's no different than discriminating against someone for his hair colour or height. It is the logical equivalent.

Actions start as thoughts. If you hear someone in the community using homophobic language, confront them about it. If you use homophobic language or are teaching it to your children, grow up and stop it.

The business owner wrote in his Facebook post he thinks we need to have a real and lasting discussion about homophobia and inclusiveness in the community and that appears to be the case.

What happened last week is unacceptable.

"QUICK, MAKE A MESS. COMPANY'S COMING."

The active lifestyle

THIS SHOULD COME AS NO surprise to anyone who knows me, but I'm not the sharpest eraser on the tree - which is to say that I don't understand a lot of things and sometimes even get common phrases completely wrong.

One of the things I don't understand today is a South American environmental activist named Arteval Duart. I get his motive and passion for saving the Amazon rain forest. What I don't understand is how placing two vampire bats in his mouth to raise awareness is connected to that in any

That's what he recently

This isn't a surprise though. Before that, he knelt in a burning box with a snake in mouth. And prior to that, he walked on broken glass with four snakes in his mouth. His YouTube channel also shows him placing live tarantulas, as well as a venomous toad and insect inside his mouth.

Honestly, the only awareness these things raise for me is that my stomach is getting kind of queasy thinking about it.

Don't get me wrong. As a rule, I admire anyone who is devoting his time and effort to make this world a better place. But I also happen to believe that if you have a thing for putting live animals in your mouth, you should probably keep that at arm's length from your cause. And maybe see someone about it.

The reason, in my humble opinion, is simple. No sane person would place live vampire bats, spiders, toads, insects or snakes in their mouth - unless, of course, it is in response to a dare.

Otherwise, however, you look like a bit of an idiot. And that never helps a cause.

I mean, imagine you are one of those two vampire bats. You're sitting there minding your own business, perhaps looking for your black cape, when, suddenly, here comes that weird guy Arteval – the one who tried to swallow the snakes.

Suddenly, he picks you and your buddy up and places you in his mouth for a few seconds before your friend flies out and you crawl out on his chin to regain your composure.

"What the hell, Arteval?" is probably your first thought.

Your second is likely embarrassment regarding your recent episode of poor bladder control.

In any case, later, as you hang out, literally, at the Internet café, you see that Arteval actually took a video of the whole thing and is using it to raise awareness to save the Amazon, without even having the courtesy to ask for your permission. This time, you're thinking of gathering the snakes, spider, toad and insect for a class-action lawsuit.

I ask you, how is that going to save the rainforest?

If there is any good news for those poor animals it is this. Arteval can only fit so much inside of his mouth. This means he will not be placing a live jaguar or a threetoed sloth inside his mouth – although I would donate good money to the cause to see that.

The thing I'm seeing is that this guy is actually terrorizing the very animals he wants to save. Let's face it; the inside of a human's mouth is the last place any animal wants to go.

Bladder control issues notwithstanding.

The cabin at Ghostly Point

▼ UMMER WITHOUT CAMPFIRE STORIES? NO WAY! Here's one of mine that we will publish in three parts over the next three weeks. Grey twilight fell across the far shore of Shkendang Lake, obscuring bit by bit the brooding shoreline, the thick-waisted white pines, and the old cabin standing alone on the rocky point. The cabin's washed out red tin roof, and the rough hewn log porch below it, were barely visible now from the Garrison family cottage directly across the bay.

Shainie Garrison leaned forward and squinted fiercely. Her slender 13-yearold fingers squeezed the chair armrests with a force that threatened to snap them. Lights and shadows from the campfire danced in her intense brown eyes while the faint band of freckles below them coloured with excitement.

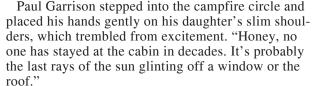

"There it is!" she cried, propelling herself from the chair and pointing over the fire and across the lake. "It's there again. The light."

Shainie's father Paul dropped an armload of split firewood and bent low to peer out over the water. Nothing. Nothing but a dark far shore and more darkness spreading across the half-kilometre of water separating them from Ghostly Point.

"Shainie," her father sighed with exasperation. "We've been through this before. There is nothing

"But dad there was. There was! I saw it! A light was on. Then it went out. Just like the other times."

JIM POLING SR.

Shainie looked into the gentleness of her father's grey eyes. Oh, how she wanted to believe him. But he was wrong. It wasn't sunlight. It was a campfire or lantern light. She just knew it.

Her parents were becoming concerned at her insistence that she had seen the light at Ghostly Point several times. It seemed to possess her, drawing her to sit by the campfire every evening waiting for it to reappear.

Marcella Garrison understood that her daughter was a creative child with a vivid imagination, but worried that the phantom light story was becoming more than a young girl's fantasy. She wondered if tall tale story swapping between Shainie and her grandfather, a renowned storyteller, had anything to do with her daughter's fantasizing.

"Maybe you shouldn't tell her all those stories, Dad," Marcella told her father one morning. "She needs to stop with these stories about a light at the cabin.'

"The girl has a wonderful imagination," said Ira Desilets, a tall sun-toughened outdoorsman who had built Shainie a small cedar-strip canoe that she could take out by herself, on the strict understanding that she wear her life jacket.

"And who knows. . . maybe the girl is seeing something."

He had encountered some genuine mysteries in his many years in bush country. Every tale of the woods, no matter how outrageous, was based on some truth. Even the story of how the lake got its name.

Shkendang is "grieving" in the Ojibwe language and the Ojibwe who had lived in the area named it after a tragedy a century before.

Every spring before the Europeans arrived, the Ojibwe came to the lake to catch the lake trout that were plentiful just after the ice melted. They camped at Ghostly Point and at night their campfires illuminated the waters surrounding the rocky point. Their chants joined the wood smoke drifting skyward to Gzhemnidoo, the great spirit, in respect and thanks for the nourishment they took from Mother Earth.

Their Gimaa, or leader, had one daughter who he affectionately called Moong, meaning Loon Who Brings Happiness. She was beautiful, happy, and skilled in the woods as a hunter, fisher and gatherer of food, much like the loons with whom they shared the lake.

Early one morning Moong canoed out to fish alone. She planned to fill her canoe bottom with trout to impress and please her father, ignoring the warning of an old man who cautioned about dark skies building on the western horizon.

Church vandalism shameful

To the Editor,

When I came to live in Haliburton in 1999 I noticed the church parking lots were full on a Sunday. As the years went by, it became clear that the houses of worship here were part of the social as well as faith fabric of the community.

One church that stood out was the now 111 year old stone St. Peters Anglican on Maple Lake. Apart from being an attractive building built with skill by an English stonemason, it spoke of the continuity of life and faith in the

On June 12 the congregation there arrived for Morning Prayer to find the church had been vandalized. The altar cross, candles and Communion set had been stolen along with other items and some interior damage was done.

In order for those responsible to attack the venerable house of worship. someone has to have failed. Was it a lack of home instruction by parents of those responsible, or sadly a change in lifestyle in the wider community?

As a result of this mean spirited act, citizens of the county must feel a sense of loss and a diminishing of their well being.

Health costs continue | Off-road vehicles remain to climb for county

by CHAD INGRAM Times Staff

The cost of the county's EMS department continues to rise year after year at a rate that Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin says is unacceptable.

Haliburton County councillors received an audit of the municipality's 2015 spending during a June 22 meeting.

While spending in most areas – planning, transportation, etc. - remains fairly constant with small increases or fluctuations on a year-to-year basis, the budget line for health - which includes the operation of the Haliburton County Paramedic Service – grows by a much larger chunk each year.

Between 2011 and 2015, health expenses have risen by about $1 million, from approximately $4.2 approximately $5.2 million.

Like most departments, wages and benefits constitute the majority of those costs. Wages for 2015 constituted just over $3 million, benefits nearly another million.

Health costs in 2015 increased some $280,000 from 2014, which an audit from firm BDO said was due to an increase in EMS staffing related to the opening of the county's new EMS base on Highway 35 in Minden.

The county is reimbursed by the province for 50 per cent of its land ambulance program and total health costs paid by the municipality for 2015 amounted to just less than $3 million.

"It's a trend that I see as a huge red flag and cannot continue," Devolin said of the increases. "That's something that we as a council need to have a serious look at."

The County of Haliburton has an annual budget of approximately $20 million, approximately $13.7 million of which was levied through taxation in 2015.

"Everything is very consistent, year over year, where your revenue sources are coming from," auditor Trina Connell of BDO told councillors.

Last year, council voted to take out some $3.6 million in loans on which payments will be debentured over a number of years, Some $1.7 million went toward the construction of the new EMS base on Highway 35 and the remainder was to help cover a number or large infrastructure projects.

Revenues for the municipality increased by $1.86 million in 2015, including some $677,000 in increased taxation and an influx of provincial funding nearly $700,000 in provincial funding, a large chunk of the latter for construction work on the Head Lake bridge in Haliburton Village.

The county ended 2015 with a surplus of about $360,000. Its reserves were at about $3 million heading into 2016.

off Rail Trail

by CHAD INGRAM

Times Staff

Off-road vehicles will remain banned from the Haliburton County Rail Trail, at least for the foreseeable future.

Last year, the Haliburton County ATV Association requested that off-road vehicles (ORVs) be allowed on the corridor, where ATVs are permitted May through November.

ORVs are prohibited on the multi-use trail and at a June 22 county council meeting, councillors voted to maintain the status

ORVs, also referred to as side-by-sides, are often two-seat vehicles comparable in design to golf carts.

Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin said an easy way to distinguish between the two is that while people ride "on" ATVs, they ride "in" ORVs.

Roads director Craig Douglas said another indicator was whether a vehicle has handlebars (ATV) or a steering wheel.

It was Douglas's recommendation that ORVs continue to be prohibited on the Rail Trail. He said some ORVs are wider than compact cars.

"ORVs can be wider than our little cars," Douglas said. "I'm just envisioning two cars on the trail.'

A report from Douglas noted that if the trail was opened to ORVs, it would require additional brushing, as well as widening of the corridor. It also stated that the City of Kawartha Lakes does not permit ORVs on its section of the trail.

The Haliburton County Rail Trail, a former railway bed, runs 34 kilometres from Haliburton Village to Kinmount, where it becomes the Kawartha Lakes Victoria Rail Douglas's report also noted insurance concerns and a public input process that took place in 2012 and recommended existing uses be frozen.

A number of councillors said they were relieved to see Douglas's recommendation. Dysart et al Murray Fearrey said there are townships where ORVs are permitted on trails, with the vehicles subject to maximum

HHHS celebrates its history at AGM

by CHAD INGRAM

Times Staff

Times have certainly changed throughout decades of health care in Haliburton County.

The annual general meeting of Haliburton Highlands Health Services was a much larger affair than usual last week. With the organization celebrating numerous milestones in 2016, members of the community were invited to a luncheon and networking event before the meeting at the Pinestone's ballroom on June 23.

This year marks the 80th anniversary of the Haliburton hospital, the 50th anniversary of the Hyland Crest long-term care home, the 45th anniversary of the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary, the 20th anniversary of the HHHS Foundation and the 15th anniversaries of both the Minden Hospital Auxiliary and Highland Wood long-term care facility.

Audrey Northey shared some memories of working at the Minden hospital during some of its early years.

Northey got a job at the Minden hospital after arriving in the community with her husband in 1959.

"He thought he was in paradise, but I was not happy about living in Minden," Northey told the room.

As Northey explained, protocols at the time were a bit different than now, she and other staff routinely performing X-rays without the use of lead aprons.

The accepted conclusion was that it couldn't be too hazardous to one's health, since many staff had children and therefore still possessed the ability to procreate.

"We had 80 babies delivered in a year, but once the pill came out, that slowed down," Northey said to hoots of laughter.

New ways of working together are being explored every day.

— HHHS INTERIM CEO CAROLYN PLUMMER

At the time, required supplies were delivered to the hospital by local police officers and one patient transfer to hospital in Toronto was done using an Easton's meat market van.

HHHS interim CEO Carolyn Plummer said the date of the meeting was appropriate, since it marked the 80th anniversary of the original Haliburton hospital – the building where Canoe FM is now located – to the day.

Plummer gave an overview of various HHHS programs, including the implementation of its new telehomecare program, in partnership with the Ontario Telehealth Network and the Community Care Access Centre.

"This is a program that involves virtual health-care monitoring," she explained. The program, which is helpful for patients with conditions such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and congestive heart failure, was established in November with assistance from the Haliburton County Development Corporation and has more than 70 clients.

Audrey Northey humorously shared memories of working at the Minden hospital in its early years during the Haliburton Highlands Health Services AGM at the Pinestone on June 23. CHAD INGRAM Staff HHHS administered 3,800 physiotherapy appointments, had more than 300 new admissions to its mental health programs and 87 patients pass through its palliative services.

Its diabetes education group is one of the busiest such groups in the Central East Local Health Integration Network Region, Plummer said.

There were more than 15,000 visits at the Minden ER and more than 12,000 at the ER in Haliburton Village.

HHHS also has a new, enhanced human resources plan and new staff recognition activities.

"Our staff have been through a lot of changes over the past few years," Plummer said. "New ways of working together are being explored every day."

Some staff members were on hand to talk about their jobs.

Jean Hancock has worked in supportive housing for nearly 20 years. Supportive housing services allow people to stay in their homes longer.

"Some of the people I work with ... I bathe them, I walk them," Hancock said. "They're like family. My theory is you're not born alone, so you shouldn't have to live alone. When I get up in the morning, I'm so blessed because I know where I'm going and I really want to get there."

Heather Townsend is with the local GAIN (Geriatric Assessment Intervention Network) team, which provides assessment and recommendations for care of at-risk seniors, such as those with cognitive impairments or those who are at risk of falling or have experienced a fal

"We are for our clients, but also for the caregivers of our clients," Townsend said. "We've had a lot of successful days in our first year."

Auditor John West of firm McColl Turner presented the organization's financial statements. HHHS ended the fiscal year with a deficit of more than $420,000. Salaries, wages and benefits rose by some $1.75 million from the year prior and Turner said an increase in sick time had contributed in part to these heightened costs.

Salaries, wages and benefits constituted the largest chunk of HHHS's nearly $25 million in expenses at more than $15,220,000.

The largest portion of the organization's budget came directly from the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care in the amount of nearly $20 million.

The leaders of the Minden and Haliburton auxiliaries and the HHHS Foundation provided updates on their fundraising activities, thanking the community for its contributions.

The foundation has raised some $916,000 for a new palliative care suite at the Haliburton site. After some delays with the province, the project is now out to tender. Executive director Dale Walker said she hoped the foundation wouldn't have to raise much more money for the project, but would in order to fulfil its commitment to fund the addition.

Its next campaign will be for bone densitometry equipment. The foundation has raised more than $13 million in its 20-year history.

Oxtongue Lake to celebrate link to famed explorer

This Canada Day the community of Oxtongue Lake in the Township of Algonquin Highlands has an additional reason to celebrate: a plaque commemorating famed explorer and map-maker, David Thompson (1770-1857), is to be unveiled as part of the July 1 festivities there.

David Thompson was a British-Canadian fur trader but is best known for his prolific surveying and mapping of over four million square kilometres of continental North America. He walked or paddled an estimated 80,000 km over his career, creating many of the first European maps of what would become western Canada, parts of eastern Canada and the northwestern United States with extraordinary accuracy. For this unparalleled achievement Thompson has been described as the "greatest land geographer who ever lived."

Renowned canoe builder and restoration specialist, historian, and David Thompson expert, Jack Hurley, will be on hand to unveil the plaque. "Thompson was Canada's premier explorer and mapmaker. He charted over 1,200,000 square miles of Canada and was the first to render Canada's boundaries with precision," said Mr. Hurley. "Imagine how exciting it would have been to see this vast territory depicted on paper for the first time."

The plaque – one of a series around the lake – is part of a project steered by the Oxtongue Lake for Arts and Culture (OLAC) committee: a group of residents committed to promoting the long-standing arts history in the area, including several decades in which Tom Thomson and the Group of Seven painted along these shores and forged deep relationships with the community.

"Oxtongue Lake for Arts and Culture is thrilled to be honouring this great man," said Chris Woods, co-chair of the OLAC committee. "His maps of this region were the first glimpse that European-Canadians had of the majesty that exists up here. They were instrumental in opening up the north to other travellers, including Tom Thomson and the Group of Seven, whose paintings and journals depicting this area have become iconic in Canadian culture and identity."

In 1837, Thompson was asked by the British government to survey a route from Lake Huron to the Ottawa River: the first step in the anticipated construction of a canal to enable boats and goods to travel without the arduous portages that had marked the trip until that point. His work took him from Lake Huron, up the Musquash River into Lakes Muskoka, Rosseau, and Joseph, through Lake of Bays and Oxtongue Lake, and into what is now Algonquin Park. It is this work, and the effect it had in instigating the Canadian love of the North, that is being honoured with the new plaque.

Celebrations for the plaque unveiling will kick off at the Oxtongue Lake Community Centre during local Canada Day festivities at 12 p.m. on July 1 with Algonquin Highlands Councillor Marlene Kyle and Reeve Carol Moffatt in attendance. The installation itself taking place on Sunday, July 3 at 10 a.m. at the Oxtongue River parkette off Highway 60 on the shore of the river.

Katie's Run for Epilepsy to focus on moms

For the fifth annual Katie's Run for Epilepsy, organizers are putting the spot-light on the "moms of epilepsy" – women who are walking the epilepsy road with their children. Since April, several mothers have poured out their hearts and let their stories be told on the Katie's Run website and Facebook page.

The event began in 2012 as a fundraising run for epilepsy research in honour of Katie Woudstra. And fundraise it has – $60,000 was raised in the first four years. But more than that, this event in the small village of Haliburton, Ontario has brought together many families from across the country to share their experiences and encourage each other. So it's fitting that on the fifth anniversary, organizers are featuring not one, but many stories as they publicize the desperate need for research and a cure

Jody Rice is one mom who knows all too well how devastating this condition can be. She lost her son Tyler as the result of a seizure.

"I am deeply sorry for any added anguish that my son's story brings to others living with epilepsy— my heart goes out to you—but this is the reality of epilepsy. Sometimes epilepsy kills," writes Jody in her story on the website.

Jody is the originator of what is now the Katie's Run motto: "Helping to uncover the brilliance that will end epilepsy – forever."

Event organizers say it's the moms who are leading the fundraising efforts this year. There are moms from other provinces who can't be at the event but are fundraising.

Katie's Run takes place on Saturday, July 9, at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. This is a new venue for the event which was previously held at Sir Sam's. The five-kilometre and 10-kilometre runs will go out and back along the Haliburton County Rail Trail, a flat and fast route. The 2.5-kilometre walk/run route is a stroller, wheelchair and dog friendly loop around the school area and Grass Lake Road.

Registration for the fifth annual Katie's Run is available at www.katiesrun.ca. Volunteers are still needed and can also sign up on the website.

Bear safety tips

by ANGELA LONG Times Staff

As the weather warms and seasonal residents arrive, it's more important than ever to keep bears where they belong: in the wild. Katie Paroschy, Minden's bear technician for the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry, says the number of problem bear reports and regular bear sightings have been increasing over the past two weeks. Like most us, a bear's life revolves around food. It's important communities unite, advises the ministry, taking steps to reduce bear attractants and protect both humans and bears from unnecessary harm.

How to keep bears away:

DO

Store garbage in a bear-resistant container inside a storage area

Wash garbage containers and dumpsters frequently with odour-reducing disinfectant

Clean your barbecue (especially the grease

Store meat and fish scraps in the freezer until garbage day

Pick ripe fruit and berries, don't let them rot on the ground

DON'T

Put out your garbage the night-before Leave pet food outside

Fill your bird feeders, wait until winter

Put meat, fish, or anything sweet (including fruit) in your composter

What to do if you see a bear:

(Remember: bears aren't always a threat, says the ministry. When a bear is "exhibiting threatening or aggressive behaviour," that's when you should worry.)

DO

Remain calm. We live in an area surrounded by nature; maybe the bear is just passing

Keep away. Warn others. Bring the kids inside (a building, or a car), and all pets.

Keep dogs away. Uncontrolled dogs can bring the bear back.

Get rid of any food or garbage that might have attracted the bear.

DON'T

Block a bear's exit

Try to get a bear out of a tree. It will come down when it feels safe, usually after dark.

What to do if a bear approaches you:

Back away. Slowly. Watch the bear.

If the bear continues to approach, stop. Look big. Get aggressive. Throw rocks or sticks.

Make noise. Use a whistle, a bell, an air horn.

Use bear repellent, but only if being attacked, or if the bear is very, very close. Know how to use it.

DON'T

Turn and run.

Play dead – unless it's a mother bear protecting her cubs. Otherwise, fighting back is your best chance.

Who to Call:

Emergency: Call 911, or local police, if you see a bear entering a school yard when school's in session, stalking someone and lingering on site, entering or trying to enter a residence, wandering into a public gathering, killing pets or livestock and lingering on site.

Non-Emergency: Call Bear Wise (toll-free, 24/7, April 1 until November 30) at 1-866-514-2327 (TTY 705-945-7641) if you see a bear checking out garbage cans, breaking into a shed where there's food or garbage, hanging out in a tree, pulling down a bird feeder, knocking over a barbecue, moving through a field or a backyard without lingering.

For more information about black bear behaviour, reducing bear attractants and avoiding human-bear conflict, call Bear Wise, or visit www. ontario.ca/bearwise.

Saying goodbye to Tony Dymott

AROUNDTHE TOWN

Patti Fleury 705-488-2938 brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse and throughout Kinmount there is shock and great sadness on the passing of Anthony "Tony" Dymott. Tragically Tony was killed in a motor vehicle accident last Friday, June 24 at the age of 97 years. Born on November 20, 1918 his life was one of adventures that most of us can only imagine. Tony served proudly in the Royal Navy spending two years in Iceland and apparently during his naval service became aquainted with Prince Philip. In his professional life Tony was an accountant involved in importing and exporting internationally travelling on business with Shell Oil to many countries including Scotland, India Ethiopia and Yemen while his personal journeys took him to both the North and South Poles and all across Canada. An experienced tripper he travellied by canoe or kayak along many challenging courses combining his love of the outdoors with his passion for photography. Retiring from Canada Packers [now Maple Leaf Foods] Tony and Ursula established there home in Kinmount and became active in their new community with Tony a volunteer with Meals On Wheels. Both avid curlere they were valued members of the Minden Curling Club providing leadership as team skips. Tony's association with his many friends at the Club continued after Ursula's passing in 2013 to the present. They both lovingly tended their impressive gardens and cared for those cats who decided to make that stately Victorian homestead their own. To some who will not recognise Tony by name he would have been a familiar figure daily walking down the Monck Road hill to Main Street and back. While slight of stature in truth he was a giant in many ways living a life full of adventure. He will be greatly missed and warmly remembered by all fortunate to nave crossed his path. As described by long time neighbour Joyce Tony was truly a gentle man and a gentleman. We share our gratitude for knowing him with his family and in particular his dear friends Sandy and Randy Cole and Max and Pat Radiff. Personally Bruce and I shall still look for him coming down that hill. Arrangements have been entrusted to the Monk Funeral Home in Minden.

St. James Anglican Church in Kinmount will be holding a pancake breakfast this Saturday, July 2 from 9 to 11 a.m. in the Church Hall. The menu includes pancakes, sausages, real maple syrup and beverage with cost by donation. # Crossing the bridge

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE heard ... life is better with laughter!

One day, Joe, Bob and Dave were hiking in a wilderness area when they came upon a large, raging, violent river. They needed to get to the other side, but had no idea of how to do so. Joe prayed to God, saying, "Please God, give me the strength to cross this river." Poof! God gave him big arms and strong legs, and he was able to swim across the river in about two hours, although he almost drowned a couple of times. Seeing this, Dave prayed to God, saying, "Please God, give me the strength and the tools to cross this. Poof! God gave him a rowboat and he was able to row across the river in about an hour, after almost capsizing the boat a couple of times. Bob had seen how this worked out for the other two, so he also prayed to God saying, "Please God, give me the strength and the tools, and the intelligence, to cross this river." Poof! God turned him into a woman. She looked at the map, hiked upstream a couple of hundred yards, then walked across the bridge.
